

V Rising Scourgestone and where to get them

Scourgestone in V Rising is a valuable material formed by the mixture of

- Whetstone(x1)
- Glass(x3)
- Grave dust(x3)

It can either be farmed if you know how to craft or can be fished about by the players. If created and maximized, then it is a kind of creating multiple sources of income like making dark Silver Ingot.

How to find Scourgestone in V Rising: -

The most accurate locations where you can find Scourgestones are the cemetery locations. Proceed to those places; more specific check chests, barrels, coffins and local mobs (they have drops of Scourgestones).

- Church of the Damned: - It is the primary location where you need to search for Scourgestone because this is where you get a little bit more consistent Scourgestones. Located in the north of Dunley Farmlands; this place has chests and mobs (mob drop) and for sure you will get a handful of Scourgestones.
- Dunley Monastery: - It is located in the west of Dunley Farms. The place is crowded with graves, break them and there is a chance that you will get some Scourgestones.
- Ancient Villages: - The last but not the least; this place in V Rising is in the Cursed Forest. Scourgestones might be scattered all over the place.
- Utilizing your throne: the reason why this is important because with your throne you can send servants to also have a get hold of Scourgestones. If you are searching or farming or doing both you can send your servants, it would lock the gain in one place, you need not to go out in the sun.

Farming of Scourgestones in V Rising: -

As mentioned earlier, the Scourgestones can be crafted using:

- Whetstone(x1)- you can find it in the Bandit Camps as a drop or in barrels, chests and crates.
- Glass(x3)- crafting glass is a pain. First you need to mine quartz and then you need to craft glass out of it.
- Grave dust(x3)- basically the places where you search for Scourgestone contains grave dust in abundance (that's how searching is easy than crafting) or you can acquire grave dust by throwing bones into the grinder.

You can craft Scourgestones in a furnace (which will be unlocked during tutorial).

Scourgestone as a drop in V rising:

Drop intentionally signifies drop from mobs after defeating them. Basically, the two mobs are:

- Skeleton bishop: a mini-boss mob that roams around every cursed dead location in V rising (except Farbane Woods). The possibility of getting Scourgestone from it is high.
- Scarecrow: this mob can only be found in Abandoned farm, standing lifeless yet scary. You need to hit them to attack you (some of them become mini boss) nevertheless, defeating them isn't so difficult. The most common attack is that they vanish after you whack them hard and reappear to attack you; it's kind of peculiar.

Building the farm for Scourgestone in V Rising:

The best way to do it is to construct a tomb (kill Goreswine the Ravager, a level 27 boss to unlock building tombs). Plant some flowers to spawn Banshi and skeleton bishops in every tomb. Get them down to Scourgestone or grave dust. For getting bones, you might kill the boss to unlock the ability to craft graves and craft twelve of them, spawn some skeletons and you get handful of bones, grind it to get grave dust.
